Nick, Adair County Engineer, was down this past week to look over the Hungry Canyon project on Orange Avenue of which there will be a meeting for approval from Hungry Canyons on Friday. Meet with FEMA on Thursday and are close to wrapping up with them. 200th Street detour with city received a lot of traffic and are going to try to water the road down and get it back into a satisfactory shape. Department Head reports: Conservation – Have started pulling buoys at the lake. Campgrounds are still being utilized and most likely will continue to be as long as the weather stays above freezing. Restrooms in the campgrounds will stay open through this weekend and then will start shutting them down except for the cottages and the self-contained cabins. The fish cleaning stations will also be shutting down. The policy has been that the lake stops taking reservations October 1 but the board is considering extending that date by a couple of weeks next year. The water level is down about 2-2 1/2 feet but not quite as low as last year. Travis and Marti attended the annual CCPOA 3-day training for recertification. EHD disease is prevalent and can be reported by individuals on the DNR website to obtain more documentation on the disease. Auditor – Becky was speaking to a group on Worker’s Comp and Nancy reminded everyone that in-person absentee voting begins on Wednesday. Also, there is a new election tool on the county website to assist residents in locating their polling location.

Maynes moved, seconded by Standley to approve the claims as presented. All supervisors voted aye. Motion carried.
